

Bob's Review of Golf Products

The first book, "The First Tee Shot" is a parent's Guide to Teaching Kids Golf. Included with this informative book is an instructional DVD.

The second book is "In the Spirit of the Game" which tells of Golf's Greatest Stories. In my opinion, this is a sure winner for all, because one can digest the facts and emotions of each story in 30 minutes or less and have the feeling that rather than have read the story, they were part of this bit of golf history.

The third book is Robert Diodor's "Golf Courses of the World" (365 Days) which features one course on two pages, the first page being a brief description of the course, while the right-hand second page shows a beautiful picture-postcard of one of the holes along that course. Ah, looking through the book brought back memories of courses I've played around the world and particular memories of the foursome with whom I played and.....did I really get a par on that hole?

Who really cares? It's the memories that count. Remember Abunga.com when you or members of your family are looking for books and I don't think you will have to fret a bit.

The movers and shakers of this site have a master plan that is working and providing donations to the worthy causes that you get to earmark with each of your purchases.

VIVI'S ORIGINAL SAUCES

Right around the corner are the holidays, with Thanksgiving and the Christmas day holidays not far behind. It's an annual period of cheer and happiness, even in the most destitute of economic times.

One of several obvious reasons why New Year's Resolutions such as weight-loss are postponed until after these holidays is because sumptuous food is used as a social binder. Everyone is off their diets since it's almost impossible to pass up the turkey or pheasant passed around the large and crowded table at grandma's. -It's a perfect text-book example of holiday peer pressure!

So don't be dismayed by my zealotry when it comes to different foods and sauces that can play an originally-creative part at some of the holiday get-togethers you throw for your family and/or friends.

Vivi's Original Sauces and her Carnival Mustards make for delectable differences especially this time of the year.

The trio are not flavored mustards, but rather mustard-tomato-pickle based sauces which have been coined "The Ultimate Condiments" to use as a dip, a spread, for baking, marinating and sautéing. I tried them straight on a garlic crackers minutes ago and, to be delight, was very surprised on how the sauces stood on their own merits. They are all natural, vegan, wheat-gluten free, low in calories and carbohydrates and sugar, and contain no fats or cholesterol.

Vivi, who teaches by day and becomes a sauce entrepreneur by night, owes her abilities and creativeness with these sauces to her grandmother's recipes.

I especially liked her Roasted Grand-standerd Garlic Sauce.
